NINETEEN FORTY

Presented To The Library

In Memory Of

WILLA MAE COX NOBLE

Willa Mae.

Really, don't know where to begin as our fun has been so strung out. From one place to the other. Even to the big city of Franklinville. On a cold, dark evening in a big roomy car. The low gas tank didn't make a big difference did it! In fact I think a few things were accomplished. Ketch! I just feel that "Precious" is too large a car. Specially the front seat. In my will I'm going to leave some money for steam heat to be put in the back.

Then, there have been other times. Denton is a nice place, also. This weather isn't it? For bullfrogs & ----- Let's get together sometime and find a real Betty for poor ole Charlie. The lone ranger rides again - (alone, too)

Willa - Have you ever gone anywhere in which you were so crazy as the trip to Charlotte. Hot "cats" and everything. Even if you did turn male in the chair & embarrass me to death. [Fair are the meadows.]

I like band concerts - Don't you? In fact I'm a hog about them. More fun than a barrel of (fish) ha! that fooled you I bet.

I'm growing fairly old. I'll soon be nigh 'on 50 years. (Senior Play) But I've been quite spyer in my date. No time wasted in my estimation.

Then you are a "bland". So sweet & delicate. (So Fragile) No. I take it back. you have ^(been) been through a lot. I know you will have a tough time next year without a little Paney to guide you.

You are really a sweet little girlie with that rose petal skin - I love you so much. Lots & kisses anne

P.S. Dr. ^{with} further information (if you wish some) just make an appointment with me & I'll grant you an interview

Foreword

School life is always of utmost importance in the development of an individual's character and in the increase of the intelligence of our nation. School means much to anyone who has ever been to high school, especially to one that has graduated. Memories of these days are treasured and will be treasured even more as the years go by. Perhaps, through this volume of ASH-HI-LIFE, we can portray to others and can keep for ourselves some of our most valued memories.

SUPERINTENDENT'S MESSAGE

Once again I sit down to write a message to you seniors and others whose faces appear in this book. As you grow older, you will find life dividing itself into periods. For you the high school period will soon be complete and the ASH-HI-LIFE will through pictures and printed words help you to preserve the memories of these happy years.

It has been said of Lincoln that he was always a learner. That will be so with you, for education is a part of life. Regardless of what you do after high school, you will always be learning. Education must go on formally or informally and it should add to the happiness of you all

THE VOYAGE OF "SCHOOL CRUISER"

By Maxine Branson

In the fall of the year 1929, 124 young children boarded the good ship, "School Cruiser" for a series of eleven voyages on the Sea of Education. The commander of the ship was Mr. R. J. Hilker. The second-in-command was Miss Alma J. Lossiter. The cabin officers for our first voyage were Miss Lucy Leigh Lovette, Miss Ino Cockrell, and Miss Mory Moffitt. These able "seamen" carried us through our first year on a calm sea. Miss Lucy Leigh Lovette, because of our inability to speak distinctly was christened Miss "Woosy Wee", a name which has followed her through all these years.

In September, 1930, the number of passengers was increased by three, and 127 embarked on the second voyage of the "School Cruiser". Our commanders remained the same, but our cabin officers were replaced by Miss Enolio Presnell, Miss Jean Osbourne, and Miss Katie Belle Cogle. Our store of knowledge increased as the months went by, and at the end of the second voyage all of us had profited greatly.

As the fall of 1931 rolled around, the large number of 136 came on board the ship for the third voyage. Our cabin officers this year were Miss Dorothy Howard, Mrs. Bessie Rice, and Miss Lucille Ronkin. At the end of this year, the first lap, known as the Primory, was completed. There remained just two more, the grommor grade, and the high school laps.

When September 1932 showed itself, the passengers on the good ship "School Cruiser" dropped from 136 to 125. Our new officers were Miss Helen Hayes, Miss Louise Hunt, and Miss Donno Lee Loflin. We stopped at the ports, Reading, Writing, Geography, English, and Arithmetic. At each port we gained a little more knowledge. During this voyage the passengers engaged in a battle with their ferocious enemies, "The Examinations," who showed no mercy. Most of us came out with flying colors and no serious casualties. It was in this year that Miss Helen Hayes, one of our beloved officers, left the Sea of Education to venture out on the Sea of Motrimony.

In the fall of 1933 the number of passengers on the good and faithful ship, "School Cruiser" was found to be 134, an increase of nine. Mrs. John T. Moffitt, Miss Susie Thomas, and Miss Georgia Worren piloted us this year. We increased our number of stops to six. The ports were: Reading, Writing, Arithmetic, Geography, English, and History. We engaged in a battle again with our old enemies, "The Examinations," and again came out winners.

In 1934, 119 signed for the sixth voyage on the ship "School Cruiser". The Sea of Education was becoming a little more treacherous as the years went by. Our officers for this cruise were Miss Rose Hamilton, Miss Collie Vunannon, and Miss Virginio Borker. Most of us weathered the battle with our enemies, "The Exams". Our foes showed themselves to be a little stronger than they had been in the preceding years. In the summer of this year our first commander, Mr. R. J. Hilker, left us because of ill health and was succeeded by Mr. Reginold Turner.

In the year 1935 our seventh voyage began. At the end of this year two laps would be completed, and only one would remain, the high school lap. Our commanders were again Mr. Reginold Turner and Miss Alma J. Lossiter. Miss Bertha Presnell, Miss Leono Wood, and Miss Ann Fuller Young directed operations in the cabins. The number enrolled for this voyage was 106. We fought a tough battle this year with "The Exams", but nearly all of us came through with our colors flying. At the end of this voyage we received our passports to enter the last lap of our cruise on this Sea of Education.

In 1936 there were 146 enrolled for the eighth voyage on the good ship "School Cruiser". Our cabin officers for this voyage were Miss Virginio Borker, Miss Mabel Robertson, Mrs. J. G. Prevette, and Miss Cloro Gill. Before we were allowed to sail on our ship for the last lap, we had to be initiated by the more experienced members of the crew. While on shore leave early in the voyage, James Sonders, one of the passengers on our ship, was killed in an automobile accident. His death was a shock to everyone, and was not soon forgotten. We had lost a fine friend and loyal classmate.

During this voyage and the other voyages of the high school lap we underwent a change in routine. In different cabins we were instructed in the rudiments of education by the many different officers on the ship. Each class in a cabin lasted approximately one hour. As there were six classes, we started to work at eight-thirty in the morning and worked until four in the afternoon. We had several short skirmishes with our old enemies, "The Exams," and the results of these short battles were favorable to the passengers. Because of the complete change of life aboard the ship our next three voyages promised to be very pleasant.

As Father Time ushered in the fall of 1937, 115 passengers enrolled for the ninth voyage of "School Cruiser", showing a decrease of thirty-one from our last year's enrollment of 146. Mrs. J. G. Prevette, Miss Mary Little Steele, and Mr. M. R. Cox, Jr., were our head officers for this year. Our class periods decreased this year to five, and all were through work at three instead of four o'clock. We greeted this change with a cheer of approval. On this voyage we enjoyed many social gatherings. In the spring of this year a reception was held, the Junior-Senior. From our class eleven passengers, who were learning the noble arts of cooking and sewing, were chosen to serve as waitresses at this reception. Three were placed in charge of the refreshments. The reception went off smoothly and even the waitresses enjoyed themselves. We had another tilt with our old foes, "Exams," and although there were a few casualties the general report was favorable. As the months went by, we had a delightful time and realized many more interesting things were in store for us.

In the fall of 1938 our enrollment of passengers still dropped, with only 103 on board for the tenth voyage. This year we elected class officers. They were as follows: President, Gloria Anderson; Vice-President, Fred Henley; Secretary, Gardan Brown; and Treasurer, Glenn Pugh. Our cabin officers were Miss Cornelia Ayers and Mr. James Shreyer. This year all of us were saddened by the death of one of our classmates, Christopher Newman. I feel sure that not one of us can ever forget his companionship in the few years that he was with us.

Fifteen of us joined the Beta Club this year. The Beta Club is a national honor society for the members of the high school of superior scholarship and character. These members were: Gloria Anderson, Maxine Branson, Millicent Brittain, Helen M. Brown, John Bunch, Lester Bunting, Kitty Lee Fritz, Margaret Hooker, Virginia Lambert, Anne Lewallen, Bobby Lloyd, Emma Frances Luther, Jacqueline Poole, Howard Reeder, and Jack Staley. During this voyage we stopped at the home port of Asheboro, and the parents of some of the passengers on board gave us a picnic. All of us had a delightful time, and we were a tired but happy crowd at the end of this day on shore. The same year we gave a reception for our higher classmen. We all worked hard to make the reception a success, and I think all who attended had an enjoyable time. This year we clashed again with our old enemies, "The Exams," who gave us a terrific struggle. When this voyage drew to a close, we realized that there was left only one more voyage on this Sea of Education, after which we would either venture out on the Sea of Life or sail on a brooder sea of education—college.

The last voyage began with many dangers lurking upon and beneath the waves as we sailed away for the eleventh time to complete our high school travels in search of knowledge. To undergo these dangers, were only 81 passengers, as several for various reasons were prevented from continuing their travels. Our cabin officers for this last and important sailing were Miss Massa E. Lambert and Miss Virginia Barker. We elected to help guide us this year Ray McRae, President; Glenn Pugh, Vice-President; Agnes Bonkemeyer, Secretary; and Howard Reeder, Treasurer. They have served us well. Two very interesting stops we made were at Chapel Hill, home of the University of North Carolina; and at Raleigh, where North Carolina State College is located. These two visits offered many places of interest. At Chapel Hill we dined well at Swain Hall and then made a tour of the entire campus, the highlights of which were the library and the gymnasium. We enjoyed the football game between the University and Citadel, when the Tarheels upheld the glory of the Old North State by trouncing the South Carolinians 50 to 0. At Raleigh we looked the school over and found many things of educational value. We ended this trip also, by witnessing the football game between State and Duquesne. One of our many activities aboard ship has been the Beta Club. The officers of this club are as follows: John Bunch, President; Jack Staley, Vice-President; Kitty Lee Fritz, Secretary; and Lester Bunting, Treasurer. We have also had a school page in the RANDOLPH TRIBUNE and the editors of this interesting phase of activities aboard ship were John Bunch and Millicent Brittain. Two of our passengers, Eloise Gaddis and Franklin Woodley, succumbed to the lure of matrimony and left our ship before the end of the voyage. Another important highlight was when the name of Fred Henley was engraved on the Carolina Football Cup, showing that he was the most valuable player on the Asheboro High football team of 1939-40. In addition to this honor, Fred received a small gold football to remind him of his prowess as a ball player. We are expecting to face our formidable foe "Examinations" once more and win this last battle gloriously.

The years have flown quickly by, and our voyage is almost over. The Sea of Higher Education or the Sea of Life awaits us. Our wish is that when we venture out on these unknown waters we may honor our Alma Mater and be a credit to those who have so faithfully and successfully piloted us over the rough seas of our early voyages in search of knowledge.

John M. McGlohon

HAIL, SENIORS!

By JOHN MCGLOHON

Many days we've spent together.
Some were happy; some were sad.
We have worked and played together,
And "lats" of fun we've had.

Many hours we've spent worrying,
Wondering if we'd make the grade.
Now, we're proud of our achievements
And the progress we have made.

Soon the time will come for parting.
We shall go our separate ways,
But sweet memories will linger
Of our dear, old high school days.

Some of us may travel widely;
Some of us may famous be,
But our school days we'll remember
As we sail life's stormy sea.

We owe much to patient teachers,
Who have helped us day by day
To learn the many lessons
That will guide us on life's way.

Through the years we've spent together,
Many friendships we have made,
And no matter where we wander,
These memories will never fade.

To our dear old Alma Mater,
We will be forever true,
Carrying high the banner,
With her colors, white and blue.
